a. Case No. 26-01-HPC - 1161 Pine Street: Review of the demolition permit application submitted for the single-family residence at 1161 Pine Street.

Mr. Marx identified the home's property owners, location, size and zoning classification with a construction date of 1920 and subsequent alterations which he summarized in detail. He stated the property does not appear on the Illinois Historic Structures Listing with no public comment received. Mr. Marx stated the Historical Society

1 indicated that the property has architectural and historical significance and noted one written comment was
2 provided today. He added no building permit or site restoration plans have been submitted at this time and then
3 asked if there were any questions.

5 Chairman Coladarci asked if there were any interior photos. Mr. Marx responded only exterior photos are required
6 and internal photos were not provided. Mr. Weaver referred to the boundary lines on page 7. Mr. Marx provided
7 additional information with regard to the north property line and the property ownership. No additional questions
8 were raised at this time.

10 Chairman Coladarci asked for the applicant's presentation. Mark Gent stated he and his wife purchased the 11 property in mid-November 2025. He stated they would like to replace the home due to their growing family and 12 the home's small footprint. Mr. Gent stated the existing home's condition is livable and informed the Commission
13 they currently live on Trapp Lane. He provided information with regard to the lot pins and its ownership. Mr.
14 Weaver explained the Commission's role relating to saving homes. Mr. Gent informed the Commission they 15 considered saving the home and due to the home's layout, expansion would not be possible. He added the new 16 home would not be much bigger than the existing home.
17

18 Chairman Coladarci referred to a neighbor's concerns with regard to preserving the tree canopy. Mr. Gent
19 responded they plan to preserve trees although they do not have the final home design yet. Mr. Enck asked Mr.
20 Gent how big the new home would be. Mr. Gent responded they have not yet finished the new home's design and 21 estimated the size to be 7,500 square feet. He reiterated their plan to preserve trees. Mr. Stuart referred to 1153
22 [Pine Street] which came before the Commission some years ago and is similar to the applicants in terms of its 23 positioning on the block. He asked them to consider discussing restoring the old home with a historic restoration
24 architect. Mr. Stuart commented on the loss of homes on Pine Street and stated this home deserved to be saved.
25 Chairman Coladarci referred to the home's history contained in the agenda packet and referred to the issue of it
26 being a small home on a large lot. He agreed with Mr. Stuart's suggestion to restore the home. Mr. Gent stated the 27 new home would be traditional for Winnetka. No additional comments were made at this time.
28

29 Chairman Coladarci asked for public comment. No comments were made at this time. Chairman Coladarci called 30 the matter in for discussion. Mr. Enck referred to the Historical Society's recommendation for an HAIS due to the 31 home's historical significance. Chairman Coladarci provided the Commission with some information relating to Mr.
32 Getgood, who was a widower of a traincrash victim in the 1930's. Ms. Van Cleave stated the Commission should 33 ask for an HAIS and referred to the amount of the research done by Mary and Megan due to the home's
34 significance. Ms. Papoutsis agreed with Ms. Van Cleave's comments.

36 Chairman Coladarci asked for a motion. Mr. Marx suggested the Commission note for the record the criteria they
37 considered. Chairman Coladarci read the findings into the record and asked for a motion to request that an HAIS
38 be done for 1161 Pine Street. A motion to find that the property has sufficient architectural and historical merit
39 was made by Ms. Van Cleave and seconded by Ms. Papoutsis. A vote was taken and the motion unanimously
40 passed, 7 to 0:

45 b. Case No. 26-02-HPC - 785 Locust Street: Review of the demolition permit application submitted for the 46 single-family residence at 785 Locust Street.

47 Mr. Marx identified the home's property owners, location, size and zoning classification with a construction date of 48 approximately 1911 with one 1949 alteration. He stated the property does not appear on the Illinois Historic 49 Structures Listing with no public comment received. Mr. Marx stated the Historical Society indicated that the 50 property did not have architectural and historical significance and no public comments were received. He then 51 asked if there were any questions. No questions were raised at this time.
52

1 Chairman Coladarci asked for the applicant’s presentation. Rodrigo Serna, the property owner, introduced himself
 2 and his wife Jennifer, and stated the home is in very rough condition which he described for the Commission. He
 3 stated the new home would be modest at approximately 2,800 square feet to take advantage of the large lot. Mr.
 4 Weaver asked if the home was recently occupied. Mr. Serna stated the prior owners’ son lived in the home and the 5 home was not well maintained. The Commission Members confirmed that a previous owner won the Nobel Peace
 6 Prize and Ms. Van Cleave provided additional information on the owner. Mr. Stuart asked if the home had ever
 7 been remodeled or expanded. Mr. Marx responded not according to building records and stated the Historical 8 Society may have more extensive records but they could not find any work permits beside the 1949 alteration. He 9 added the applicant provided interior photos.

 11 Chairman Coladarci asked if there were any other questions. No additional questions were raised at this time. He 12 asked for public comment. No comments were made at this time. Chairman Coladarci then called the matter in for 13 discussion.

 15 Chairman Coladarci asked for the Commission’s comments as to whether a demolition permit should be issued or 16 an HAIS required. Mr. Enck referred to the Historical Society’s research which stated the home did not have 17 architectural or historical significance and questioned the architect, F. Robert Seyfarth. No recommendation was 18 made for an HAIS. Chairman Coladarci then asked for a motion to approve the demolition permit for 785 Locust
 19 Road and read the findings into the record from page 85. A motion as stated by Chairman Coladarci was made by 20 Mr. Weaver and seconded by Mr. Enck. A vote was taken and the motion unanimously passed, 7 to 0:

 32 submission date can be extended to allow for more nominations to be considered and would confirm with the 33 Village Director. Ms. Van Cleave informed the Commission the plaque manufacturer would be able to make the

RESEARCH SOURCES USED: Winnetka Talk, Cook County Assessor records, Cook County Recorder records, historic phone books, WHS property files, WHS digital files, Ancestry.com, Chicago Tribune

Findings:

Our research indicates that this property is architecturally significant as a design by noted Chicago architect George Croll Nimmons. Nimmons began his career working for Burnham & Root while taking classes at the Art Institute of Chicago. One of his first notable opportunities arose while at Burnham & Root when he worked as a draftsman for the 1893 Columbian Exposition and was named Superintendent of the Mines and Mining building at the fair.

Nimmons formed several partnerships through his career, including Nimmons and Fellows with William K. Fellows. Under this partnership, he designed the Julius Rosenwald house in Chicago. Rosenwald was the president of Sears, Roebuck, & Co., and hired Nimmons and Fellows to design their headquarters. The Sears, Roebuck, & Co. Complex (including the Administration Building and the Homan Square Power House) is one of many of Nimmons’s designs (both alone and under his partnerships) to be listed as a Chicago Landmark and/or on the National Register of Historic Places (the Complex is now also a National Historic Landmark). Others include the Reid, Murdoch & Co. building (National Register and Chicago Landmark), the Landmark Center in Boston (National Register and Boston Landmark), Ponce City Market in Atlanta (National Register), and the Franklin Building in Chicago (contributing structure in the Printing House Row Landmark District), to name a few.

In addition to designing the home for Sears’ president and the company’s complex, Nimmons also designed some of the company’s catalogue homes. It is unclear whether this was a catalogue design or a commission for the original homeowner. Additional research by an architectural historian is thus warranted.

Principal, George C. Nimmons and Company, Architects, Chicago, IL, c. 1922; Partner, Nimmons, Carr and Wright, Architects, Chicago, IL. Over his approximately 50-year career, Nimmons made a living producing department store and warehouse designs for his main client, Sears, Roebuck and Company (founded in Chicago in 1893) across the US. Nimmons made the plans for the grand residences of company co-founder Richard Warren Sears (1863–1914) and Julius Rosenwald (1862-1932) in the Chicago area. Rosenwald served in many capacities with the Sears and Roebuck Company, as an important early investor, Vice President and Treasurer (1895-1907) and President (1908-1924). Rosenwald resigned as President to devote himself to his numerous philanthropic interests. Aside from his close relations with Sears and Rosenwald, Nimmons's firm also designed industrial and office buildings for other corporate clients.

Nimmons joined the American Institute of Architects in 1905.

Fellow, American Institute of Architects (FAIA),

Born in OH, Nimmons lived with his family in Wooster, OH, a single-family residence on East Liberty Street in 1880. Nimmons lived with his wife, Justine, at 5211 Hibbard Avenue in Chicago, IL, in 1900; at this time, the household included George and Justine, their daughter, Marie, Justine's mother, Marie Wheeler (born 08/1842 in MI) and a 22-year-old servant, Annie Rourke (born 05/1888 in Ireland). George and Justine lived in an apartment together in 1910 on East 53rd Street in Chicago. The family continued to reside in Chicago, IL, in 1930, with a household that included daughter Nancy and a servant of Danish descent, Grace M. Jorgensen (born c. 1901 in WI). (Corrections to the Nimmons record and new information on Nimmons was shared with the author by family member Lois Gumz-Calisal on 09/22/2013. Thank you to Ms. Gumz-Calisal.) Nimmons and his wife were buried in the Oak Woods Cemetery, Chicago, IL.

His father, John Wesley Nimmons, (born c. 1835 in OH), worked as a traveling salesman in 1880; his mother, Rebecca Croll, (born c. 1841 in OH), kept house. John Nimmons's parents came from NJ (father) and NY. Rebecca's parents, John and Hannah Croll, were born in PA and lived with the Nimmons family in 1880. At this time, George's sister, Josephine, (born c. 1862 in OH), also lived at home and taught music.

Nimmons married Justine V. Wheeler (b. 05/28/1874 in Detroit, MI-d. 08/05/1946 in Chicago, IL), nine years his junior, on 04/27/1898 in Chicago, IL. Her father was George Wheeler was born in NY; her mother, Mary Vallee, was also born in MI. One of her grandparents had been a French immigrant.

A son, Paul Wesley Nimmons (1901-1912), appeared in the 1910 US Census. Another daughter, Nancy Nimmons Button (08/07/1917-07/19/2005), was 14 when the 1930 U.S. Census was done. She passed away on 07/19/2005 at Good Shepherd Hospital, Barrington, IL.

George, Justine and Nancy Nimmons sailed on the Cunard liner, Aquitania, from New York, NY, arriving in Southampton, UK, on 08/10/1926, The family returned on the Cunard line's S.S. Berengaria to New York via Cherbourg, France, between 10/23/1926-10/29/1926.

The Life and Works of George C. Nimmons, Flossmoor Architect

*Written for the Flossmoor Public Library

INTRODUCTION

Although not well-known among the general public today, Ohio-born George C. Nimmons enjoyed a long, prolific, and varied architectural career that made a lasting impact on Flossmoor, the Chicagoland region, and across the country. In 1909 he parlayed his financial success into a large summer home near the gates of the Flossmoor Country Club. Nimmons designed the home himself, along with extensive gardens and other outdoor amenities. His most major local impact would come five years later, when he was selected to design a new clubhouse for the Flossmoor Country Club. In this article I will discuss his career, his Flossmoor estate, and notable local, regional, and national works.

PART ONE: EARLY LIFE AND CAREER

Nimmons was born July 8th, 1865 in Wooster, Ohio. As a youngster he showed interest in design and architecture, and would build various objects in the family workshop at his home. However, the local college he attended—now known as the College of Wooster—offered no architectural studies degree so he graduated in 1887 with a bachelor’s degree in literature. From there he moved to Chicago and secured a job as an assistant at Burnham & Root—one of the most prestigious architectural firms in the world at that time—while taking night classes in architecture from the Art Institute. While at Burnham & Root, he had the opportunity to work as a draftsman for Chicago’s historic 1893 Columbian Exposition, and was named the Superintendent of the “Mines and Mining” building at that fair.

Nimmons eventually left Burnham & Root and began working independently at the age of 29 in 1894. His first important commission was the summer estate of W.B. Conkey in Holland, MI. Conkey, a Chicago printing magnate, was impressed by Nimmons’s skills and work ethic and became a supporter and friend to the architect. After the completion of the house, Conkey hired Nimmons to design a large new printing plant in Hammond, IN in 1898. In previous generations, most industrial buildings were given very little thought by business owners and the architects they hired. They were considered nothing more than a functional, basic building meant for labor—dirty, dingy, and odorous. Nimmons expressed the progressive belief—which he would later elaborate upon in numerous journal articles he wrote—that the industrial building could be not just an efficient model of workplace organization, but also a place that promotes the health and well-being of the employee through good design. Conkey was supportive of this idea and approved Nimmons’s design even though it increased his construction costs. At this time, Nimmons took on a partner in William K. Fellows and together they operated under the firm name of Nimmons and Fellows until 1910.

One of W.B. Conkey’s key clients was Sears, Roebuck & Company, the mail order retailer which printed thousands of catalogs a year with him. It may have been a recommendation from Conkey that resulted in Nimmons and Fellows designing the home of Sears president Julius Rosenwald in Chicago in 1902. Soon, the firm became the Sears corporation’s preferred architects. Sears was about to build a massive headquarters complex in Chicago’s North Lawndale neighborhood, and they hired Nimmons and Fellows for the project, which opened in 1905 and underwent expansion for the next decade. Sears was also expanding operations across the country and Nimmons’s firm designed distribution centers nationwide. The steady employment offered by Sears and other companies stabilized Nimmons’s career and made him very wealthy.

EARLY (PRE-1910) WORK WITH WILLIAM K. FELLOWS

Home designed in 1902 by Nimmons & Fellows for Sears president Julius Rosenwald in Chicago's Kenwood neighborhood.

The 1898 printing plant for the W.B. Conkey Company was Nimmons's first industrial commission. The design incorporated a large amount of windows, some topped with decorative arch brickwork. Decorative touches like these were unheard of in industrial buildings of previous generations. The plant also had a full outdoor park installed on-site for employees to enjoy.

In 1905 Nimmons and Fellows began work on the 40-acre Sears, Roebuck & Company Headquarters in Chicago's North Lawndale neighborhood. The complex included a 3 million square foot mail order plant—the largest commercial building in the world at the time. Only three buildings from the immense complex survive today—one in partial form (see right).

SOLO WORK FROM 1910—1917

The 1914 Reid, Murdoch & Company Building is—to generations of Chicagoans—one of Nimmons’s most recognizable buildings, due primarily to its prestigious location on the Chicago River at LaSalle Street. With the positioning of the iconic clocktower, Nimmons was the first to follow an edict in Daniel Burnham’s 1909 Plan For Chicago that new downtown buildings should engage with, rather than turn away from, the river. The building was initially entirely symmetrical; a later street widening project required the removal of an entire bay on the left side, as seen here. The building is now the headquarters of Encyclopædia Britannica.

The Franklin Building, located in Chicago’s Printers Row neighborhood, was built in 1916 for the Franklin Printing Company. The building was an active printing press until 1983, when it closed. The building was renovated into 65 condominiums and reopened in 1989.

Sears distribution center in Seattle, WA, built 1915. This building is now the world-wide headquarters of Starbucks.

PART TWO: NIMMONS'S IMPACT ON FLOSSMOOR

Like many early residents, Nimmons was drawn to the young village of Flossmoor both by the idyllic peaceful setting and by his love of golf. It is likely not possible to know exactly when he first visited Flossmoor, but records show he was a Flossmoor Country Club (FCC) member since at least 1903. Indications are Nimmons took his golf game seriously, appearing in multiple local tournaments at Flossmoor and on other Chicagoland courses throughout the next twenty years. Around 1904, Nimmons was hired to design the Flossmoor home of W.T. Beatty, the president of a road construction machinery company. Beatty's craftsman-style home is located at 1110 Western Avenue and was Nimmons' first architectural contribution to Flossmoor. In time, Nimmons decided to build his own summer home in Flossmoor. He purchased a 300 feet by 420 feet lot just south of the Beatty house, at 1240 Western Avenue. Although his self-designed house still stands, later reductions in the size of the lot meant the elimination of several amenities of the estate: a 40 by 100 foot lily pond, flower gardens, an orchard, vegetable and berry gardens, a playground, a tennis court, and a putting green/croquet lawn have all been eliminated.

Nimmons designed his summer home so that the second story balcony looked out over the lush greens and fairways of FCC across the street. At that time, the FCC clubhouse was positioned further north, with entry from Flossmoor Road. On May 4th, 1914, that clubhouse—which was supposed to be fireproof—was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. From this tragedy, and a $100,000 insurance policy for the club, came the opportunity for Nimmons to make a lasting impact on Flossmoor as the club soon asked him to design the replacement clubhouse, which still stands today.

Nimmons actually designed two clubhouses for FCC. The first, in a Spanish Revival style, was favored by the club leaders but construction estimates came in at substantially higher than the $100,000 insurance policy would provide for. Instead, they chose the present design, which had a construction estimate of $95,000 ($3 million in 2025 dollars). That cost provided for both the clubhouse and a dormitory that members from the city could use for overnight accommodations. Before construction on the new buildings began, it was decided that they would be placed in the center of the course and the course would be renumbered and reconfigured so that it began and ended at the new location.

Meanwhile, the Spanish Revival design originally planned for FCC by Nimmons had attracted the attention of others. In 1917, elements of this design were adapted into a new clubhouse for the Ravisloe Country Club in Homewood. Although aesthetically extravagant, the Ravisloe plan reused and absorbed some preexisting buildings, keeping the cost low at $70,000. Designing FCC and Ravisloe provided Nimmons with the experience necessary to take on "the largest private clubhouse in the world," that of the Olympia Fields Country Club (OFCC).

Nimmons's 1923 design for the OFCC clubhouse was made in a English Tudor style. The club, which was the first ever to feature four 18-hole courses (later reduced to two courses), was designed from the start to be the biggest of them all. Still, the statistics—and costs—for the building are staggering: a dining room seating eight hundred, a cafe with seating for an additional six hundred, five hundred feet of veranda. Where FCC was thrifty—spending only $95,000—OFCC was outlandish, spending over $1 million on the building by the end of construction in 1925. This is about $18 million in 2025 dollars.

THE BEATTY HOUSE

Right: The W.T. Beatty house (1110 Western Avenue) as photographed in 2020 for a real estate ad. This was the first building designed by Nimmons built in Flossmoor. When completed in 1905, the house sat on a four-acre lot which was later subdivided.

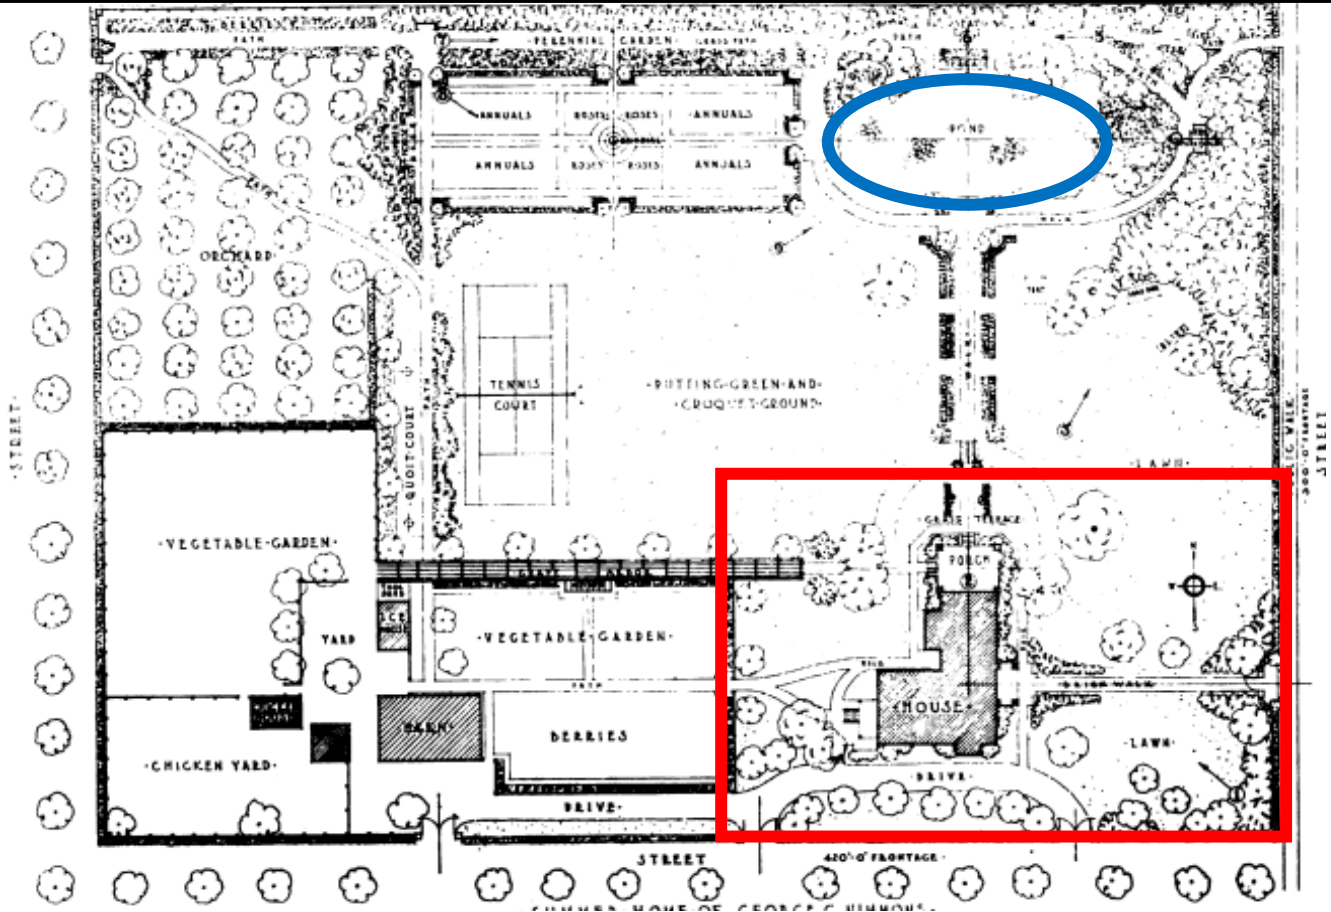

Right: Living room in the Beatty house. The home was first "modernized" way back in 1939. Since then, subsequent owners have provided continuous updates.

THE NIMMONS ESTATE

The historic images in this section are sourced from an extensive article in a 1919 issue of The Architectural Record, a journal Nimmons contributed articles to for a number of years.

Below is Nimmons's original plan for the land, which show the positions of gardens, the pond (blue circle), tennis court, etc. The area within the red square is the current size of the lot (approximately).

Right: George C. Nimmons' self-designed house, built circa 1909. This home sat on a 2.9 acre lot before later subdivision. The front door, located on the right in this 2017 image, faced Western Avenue and provided a view golf course across the street—before the trees grew large enough to block it. Nimmons owned the house the rest of his life.

1919 view from the northwest corner of the estate over the gardens to the rear side of the house.

Gardens and pathways on the estate.

Above: A southerly view across the lily pond to the back side of the home. The back of the home features a large open porch on the first floor, with an enclosed "sleeping porch" above.

Right: The pond was 40 feet by 100 feet and surrounded with paths.

THE SECOND NIMMONS HOUSE

Right: A detail of a 1924 map of Flossmoor that includes the names of homeowners in red ink, with their homes represented as black squares. This map shows George C. Nimmons as owning the houses labelled as #22 and #23 in the bottom-right corner. It is not known exactly why Nimmons built a second house on his estate, although we can likely assume it was a guest house for out-of-town visitors.

Map is sourced from the "Flossmoor Historic Home Study" produced by Richard W. Condon and Dr. Kristine Condon in 2020.

Right: The home at 1295 Brassie Avenue, as photographed in 2014. Public records state the home was built in 1908, but that is contradicted by the Nimmons's site plan (shown earlier in this essay) which has a chicken yard and a vegetable garden in this area. Only the central portion of the house is original; the garage on the left and the taller part on the right are later additions.

I have not been able to find definitive evidence that Nimmons acted as his own architect on this project, but it seems likely that he did. After Nimmons's death in 1947, the house was separated from the estate and converted from a "presumed guest house" to a full-time residence. In the 1950 census, the Lester Dean family was living in the home. They did not stay long, moving to California by 1951.

FLOSSMOOR COUNTRY CLUB

Right: A 1916 photograph of the FCC dormitory built as a companion piece to the clubhouse. Many of the members lived in the city and did not have summer homes in Flossmoor, so the club provided them with overnight accommodations.

Below: The "Men's Lunch Room" in the FCC clubhouse.

Both photographs appear in an article on golf course architecture written by Nimmons in the February 1917 issue of "The Architectural Review."

Right: The Olympia Fields Country Club clubhouse, done in an English Tudor style and featuring an 80-foot high four-sided clock tower, was Nimmons's largest and most expensive golf clubhouse design by far. Photo from OFCC website.

PART 3: SEARS “KIT HOMES”

Readers with a special interest in early 20th Century American history might be asking themselves a question by this point. We know Nimmons was the Sears company’s preferred architect for their commercial buildings, and we know he had the ability to design fine residences. Did he also design any of the famous “kit homes” that Sears sold by mail? The answer is yes, but we don’t know how many. The cause for uncertainty is the Sears company was notoriously secretive about crediting architects at all.

The Sears kit home program ran from 1908 to 1942. During the 34 year history of the program, over 370 different home kits were produced by Sears, and over 70,000 kits were sold—an average of 189 sales per model. Customers would order the kits by catalog, and prices were lower than traditional homebuilding due to Sears’ ability to mass produce items and pass cost savings along. The kits, which could contain over 30,000 individual parts, would arrive by boxcar if the building site was close to a train line. Some customers received their order by the truckload. At that point, it was up to them or their hired contractors to put the house together.

Sears did not credit individual architects in the catalog. The blueprints would occasionally list the architect, but very few customers kept them and the company discarded most of their records after ending the program. Thus, attaching a particular kit design to a particular architect takes a lot of detective work from a number of online sleuths devoted to the cause. Often, these researchers are having better luck searching municipal archives, because homeowners would occasionally transcribe the architect’s name from the blueprints to their city or town’s building permit application (although a larger contingent would just write “Sears” on the municipal form). So far, there is compelling evidence that Nimmons designed at least three of the 370 kit plans—and odds are there’s more waiting to be discovered.

On the next page are the three designs currently attributed to George C. Nimmons by internet researchers. Although there are no Sears Kit Homes in Flossmoor, there are three separate models in Home-wood. Only one of them has a verified architect, and it is not Nimmons.

PART 4: LATER CAREER, RETIREMENT, AND DEATH

Nimmons split with William K. Fellows in 1910 and worked solo until incorporating the new firm of George C. Nimmons and Company in 1917. His work for Sears continued unabated. In addition to designing ten regional distribution centers across the country, Nimmons and/or his firm eventually designed over 150 stores for Sears as the company pivoted to in-person retail in 1925. Work was credited to the firm in general and it can be difficult to attribute it to one specific partner, but Nimmons likely had a hand in each design.

Following the “Roaring ‘20s,” Nimmons’s career extended throughout the Great Depression of the 1930s. Obviously, the economic strife meant that less money was available for grand architectural efforts. As but one example, at right is an extravagant proposal Nimmons designed for the Chicago Yacht Club in 1929, just before the stock market crash. It would never be built.

In 1933, Nimmons made his assistants George Wallace Carr and Clark Wright full partners and reincorporated the firm as Nimmons, Carr and Wright. At right is one of the firm’s most important accomplishments of the 1930s—The Sears, Roebuck, & Company pavilion, a strikingly modern showpiece built as a temporary structure for the 1933 World’s Fair in Chicago. Due to his work as a draftsman for Burnham and Root during the 1893 Columbian Exposition, it is entirely possible that Nimmons may be the only architect to have worked on both the 1893 and the 1933 Chicago World’s Fairs.

As the Great Depression continued, work for the firm became much less frequent than what Nimmons experienced earlier in his career. In 1944, after over fifty years of work, he retired at the age of 79. He died three years later, in 1947. Despite his prolific career, his death seems to have prompted little interest at the time. Hometown paper The Chicago Tribune only published a brief death notice that didn’t even mention his career as an architect.

Right: This striking two-story display window was the central feature of the 1938 design by Nimmons’s firm for a Sears store at the “Six Corners” location on Irving Park Road in Chicago.

LATER (POST-1917) WORK

Above: By the time Nimmons & Company designed this Los Angeles building in 1926, they had started using art deco/streamline motifs that appear more modern than Nimmons's earlier works. This was a hybrid building that contained both a ground level retail store and a distribution plant.

Above: Nimmons's firm designed over 150 retail stores for Sears. This example is from 79th Street in Kenwood.

Above: Nimmons worked with fellow architects Max Raeder and Nelson M. Dunning on the 1926 American Furniture Mart Building in Chicago. Encompassing an entire city block, the building was the largest in the world at the time it was built. It has been converted into residential usage, with over 400 units.

Above: The last of the ten regional Sears distribution centers, all of which were designed by Nimmons or his firm. This opened in 1928 in Boston.

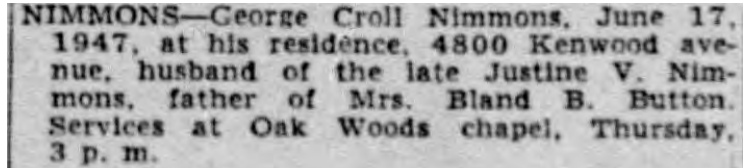

PART 5: LEGACY

That Nimmons died in relative obscurity—and remained there in the decades since—should perhaps not be a great surprise. For every “name brand” architect like Louis Sullivan, Frank Lloyd Wright or Daniel Burnham, there are dozens if not hundreds of capable architects that do not achieve any level of fame. Also, the period of Nimmons’s career—1888 to 1944—overlapped not just with the mentioned titans but also with the rise of groundbreaking European Modernists like Walter Gropius and Mies van der Rohe (who moved to Chicago in 1938 and radically changed the city’s architecture). It is easy to see why he would have been overshadowed. Still, he had a career worth recognizing and left behind a number of well-designed buildings, some modest and some monumental, that are still inspiring people today. Although a complete list has seemingly never been compiled, it is safe to say that there are between 200 and 300 buildings designed in whole or in part by Nimmons throughout the country—and that’s not counting the untold number of Sears kit homes that may be out there. Dozens of his buildings are on the National Register of Historic Places, and 21 have been designated as Chicago Landmarks.

One of the trends that keeps Nimmons’s legacy alive today is that of adaptive reuse, the process of reusing an existing building for a purpose other than which it was originally designed. Many of the massive commercial buildings Nimmons designed have taken on a new life. These developments have used Nimmons’s architecture to help reinvigorate neighborhoods that had been declining through the decades of America’s postindustrial era. Here in Chicago, the three remaining buildings at the old Sears Headquarters have been converted to loft apartments, a charter high school, and office space for local non-profit organizations. In Seattle, Starbucks remodeled an entire Nimmons building to serve as their global headquarters. In Boston, developers turned a warehouse into 401 Park, a retail and dining destination which is located just a block from venerated Fenway Park and helps anchor the neighborhood. More recently, adaptive reuse has been tied into “New Urbanism,” the movement towards creating mixed-use, densely populated, and walkable neighborhoods in cities that are heavily car-dependent. Recent conversions have changed Nimmons’s old Sears warehouses into spaces that combine retail stores, corporate offices, and residential units—all under one roof. Examples include Ponce City Market in Atlanta, Crosstown Concourse in Memphis, Southside on Lamar in Dallas, and Midtown Exchange in Minneapolis.

Nimmons owned his Flossmoor estate, as well as his main residence in Chicago’s Kenwood neighborhood, right up until his death. His wife Justine had died ten months prior. Their remaining adult daughter lived in north suburban Wilmette and sold off the estate after 38 years of family ownership. Thankfully the homes he designed, as well as the FCC Clubhouse across the street, continue to contribute to the collective aesthetic value of Flossmoor well over 110 years after their construction.

APPENDIX A: SUGGESTED ADDITIONAL VIEWING

Before moving on to the bibliography, I wanted to advise the reader—should they be interested—about a trove of remarkable videos available online. George Nimmons was an avid “home movie” hobbyist, and approximately seven years ago the Olympia Fields Country Club Historic Landmark Foundation went to great lengths to digitize and publish online a series of short clips he had filmed between 1929 and 1933. While a significant portion of the videos were filmed at the OFCC, there is also a great amount filmed at the Flossmoor Country Club or Nimmons’s Flossmoor estate. After learning about the estate through this essay, you may be interested in the rare opportunity of taking a “virtual walk” through the extensive grounds, most of which has been lost to later development.

Below is a series of links to the relevant videos, along with my annotations of the scenes. Thanks again to the OFCC Historic Landmark Foundation for making these enchanting glimpses into the past available for the general public. If viewing this PDF on a computer, hold Ctrl key and click on the links in blue; if on a phone or tablet, simply tap on the links.

Nimmons Estate Scenes, Presented in chronological order:

<https://vimeo.com/277542927>

This video from 1929 starts at the front gate of the Nimmons estate. The video then follows George’s young daughter Nancy Nimmons on a stroll throughout the grounds. At 2:26 Nancy and two others go for a swim in the pond. At 4:00 George, Justine and Nancy appear together in a touching family scene (screen grab at right). George is 64 and Justine is 55, but because they had Nancy late in life she is only 12 or 13. In fact, George and Justine had two children before Nancy who both died before she was born; daughter Marie lived from 1899—1903 and son Paul from 1901—1912. Nancy was born in 1916.

<https://vimeo.com/277542869>

The entirety of this video follows Nancy Nimmons and another young girl walking around the estate. The pond and various gardens are seen.

<https://vimeo.com/277542934>

The video begins on the house's balcony. FCC golfers are seen walking in the background. Nancy and a friend are working on a project. At 00:45 George comes out to greet them, and the scene ends. From 00:58 to the end, Nancy and her friends are seen around the grounds in very extravagant period costumes, as if for a fashion show or a theatrical performance.

<https://vimeo.com/277542861>

Video begins with a group of young people, including an older Nancy with a shorter haircut, walking through the gardens of the estate. At 00:30 they exit the estate and walk alongside a busy Western Avenue. At 00:45 they reenter the estate through the front gate and the home is seen in the background. At 1:00 Justine Nimmons is sitting on a bench in front of the estate's pond. The young people seen walking earlier join her for a conversation. At 1:50 is a golf scene, probably filmed at OFCC. This portion is noteworthy for some unusual and comedic putting sequences that would have required either some in-camera special effects or a trick ball and green; see 2:34—2:42 and 3:04—3:25. From 3:35 to the end of the video are more scenes from the estate.

<https://vimeo.com/277542891>

A rather lengthy video (9+ minutes), all shot at the estate. Mostly features Nancy Nimmons and her friends strolling through the grounds. This was filmed in 1933 and Nancy is now 16 or 17. The house is seen at 6:43.

Flossmoor Country Club scenes:

<https://vimeo.com/277542843>

At 00:08, an establishing shot of the Flossmoor Country Club clubhouse. This is followed by several scenes of golf, presumably at FCC. At 3:15, the clubhouse is shown again. At 3:26 the dormitory is briefly seen.

<https://vimeo.com/277542886>

All golf scenes from FCC. The clubhouse is seen from 2:03—2:18

The below is a list of articles published by George C. Nimmons in various publications between 1907 and 1924. They are available via Google Books or the HathiTrust Digital Library (www.hathitrust.org). It is also very possible that some of the “uncredited” articles that are in bold type on the previous page of this bibliography may have been written by Nimmons, but their lack of attribution precludes them from being listed here.

Collectively, these articles provide a modern-day researcher with the best possible insight into Nimmons’s mind, illuminating his architectural philosophies. Some are banal discussions of topics such as the use of concrete as a building material, while others explore his progressive belief in the power of architecture and design to improve the lives of the working class. His epic seven-part series on “Modern Industrial Plants” was considered a guiding work for a generation of industrial architects, with citations to the articles appearing in works produced years later.

Architect George C. Nimmons

George C. Nimmons (1865-6/17/1947) Chicago, Illinois (F.A.I.A.)

Active in practice for nearly 50 years, prominently known in Chicago, Mr. Nimmons was a former president of the local Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, and a long-time member of the Illinois Society of Architects. He was a native of Wooster, Ohio, educated at the local Academy in 1897, later studied architecture in Europe. Shortly after returning to the U.S., at the age of eighteen, he entered the Chicago office of Burnham & Root, and for a decade continued to serve as draftsman for the firm.

In 1897, Mr. Nimmons formed a partnership with William K. Fellows, which continued until 1910, and in that period the firm planned a number of large commercial buildings in Chicago, with the huge Sears & Roebuck Plant one of their most successful works. Following its completion, the partners were commissioned to design branch buildings for the company in several mid-western cities. Residential designs from that period included the R. W. Sears home located in Grayslake, Illinois (1906), and the twenty-room Prairie-style mansion built for Sears, Roebuck and Company president Julius Rosenwald in Chicago (1903).

In the years between 1910 and 1917, Mr. Nimmons practiced alone, subsequently (1917-1933) carried on work as head of his own firm, George C. Nimmons & Company. Some of the projects from these two periods include The Sears, Roebuck and Company Building, North Kansas City, Missouri (1912-13) and several works in Chicago including the Franklin Building (1912), the C. P. Kimball & Company Building (1913), the Reid, Murdoch & Company Building (1913), the Adams Schaaf Building (1916), the Union Special Machines Company Building (1918), the Kelley Building (1921) and the American Furniture Mart (1923, 1926).

In the final phase of his career (1933-1945), he continued as senior partner of the firm of Nimmons, Carr & Wright, with an office at 333 North Michigan Avenue.

Nimmons, who married Justine V. Wheeler in 1898 (they had three children), retired in 1945. After being active in practice for nearly half a century, Nimmons died on June 17th, 1947.

Bible Church Will Hold Youth Rally Saturday

A public youth rally, to be tape-recorded for national broadcast, will be held at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Winnetka Bible Church, Elm and Birch streets.

Featured speaker will be Jack Wyrzten of New York City, director of the Word of Life Fellowship. He also spoke at a Bible Church men's retreat at Lake Geneva, Wis., in September.

A former high school dance band leader and insurance man in New York, Mr. Wyrzten entered youth evangelism in the late 1930s. Several friends who, Mr. Wyrzten said, were "bordering on delinquency," joined him in Bible study and preaching in hospitals, jails, and military reservations.

The Word of Life Fellowship, 24 years old, has held religious rallies in Carnegie Hall, St. Nicholas Arena, Madison Square Garden, and Yankee Stadium. It has organized Bible clubs, religious banquets, and summer camps in the Adirondacks, Mexico, and Brazil.

Mr. Wyrzten has a television program in New York at 10:30 a.m. Sundays, and a radio show on Chicago Station WMBI at 3:30 p.m. Saturdays.

Also on the Bible Church rally schedule is religious singing by the Word of Life male quartet. They are planning missionary careers in Europe under the auspices of the Bible Christian Union.

Techno—Science ends national pollution study

Techno-Science Engineering Co., 383 Green Bay Rd., Winnetka, has finished a three-year research study on pollution across the nation, reports Oscar C. Hunstiger, general manager of the company that produces air-purification devices.

The results are not too encouraging to those of us in urban areas.

The report outlines the problem in a graphic manner. Major diseases aggravated by polluted air are lung cancer, emphysema, bronchitis, asthma and other respiratory illnesses. The hydrocarbons travel in dusts, vapors, mists and gases, and threaten urban dwellers who are 67 percent of the U.S. population.

Techno-Science provides a list of how the pollutants are produced. Coal and other solid fuels burn and produce soot and tar that carry toxins. Fuel oils and other manufactured gases also produce toxic carbon-blacks and aromatic hydrocarbons. Tire rubber and asphalt particles fly through the air as cars pass over the streets. They contain toxins as do small metal particles from industrial, chemical and mining operations. Smoking a cigaret or the incomplete burning of fossil fuels also produce toxins.

The report concentrates on one hydrocarbon, benzpyrene, that can be produced in numerous ways. Someone smoking one pack of cigarets a day inhales 60 micrograms each year. An auto idling for one minute at 500 revolutions per minute produces 235 micrograms of benzpyrene. A resident of Detroit breathes in 110 micrograms of the pollutants each year, but the U.S. does not, happily, lead the world in benzpyrene production. Londoners will probably inhale 320 micrograms annually.

The engineering company estimates it will be 10 years before the situation, probed by government and supported with technology, improves significantly. But, the company projects, until then city residents can spend up to 88 percent of their time in unpolluted environments if air purifiers are operating in homes, industry and offices, and transportation vehicles.

Techno-Science carries a full line of air purifiers, including scrubbers, absorption units and electrostatic and mechanical filters for large and small industries.

General Binding is St. Vincent's Santa

General Binding Corp. of Northbrook collected money and gifts for children in Chicago's Vincent De Paul Center this Christmas.

But this year, as in the past, employees did more than pass the hat. They built a large walk-in playhouse that was donated Dec. 18 to the center.

In past years, employees at General Binding have made large animals, playhouses, and soap-box racers for children at an individual agency each Christmas.

She has previously served as assistant vice president for Educational Services/Dean. Among her many duties, Davis served as supervisor of the educational program at OCC/Skokie, making her the chief administrator at that campus.

A Winnetka resident, she came to OCC in 1972 as a member of the student development faculty. She holds graduate degrees from Nova University and the University of Arizona.

Christina Q. Kaiser of Northfield has been promoted to the position of sales supervisor, national accounts/phthalic anhydride at Stepan Company. Kaiser joined Stepan in 1984 and most recently held the position of customer service representative. She is a graduate of Holy Cross College in Worcester, Mass.

Stepan Company, a producer of chemicals, is headquartered in Northfield.

Robert G. Walker Jr. of Northfield, president of Otis Associates, Inc., has been named a general partner as part of a restructuring of the firm from a single-owner corporation, to a corporation with 17 stockholders, and provision for more.

The change was made recently as part of the firm's 25th anniversary, and to handle the firm's rapid growth. Since 1980 the staff has grown from 25 to 50, including 22 registered professionals.

Walker earned a bachelor's degree in architecture from Princeton University in 1961, and a bachelor of architecture from the University of Michigan College of Architecture and Design in 1963. He joined Otis Associates in 1970 and was named president in 1979.

Glenn K. Seidenfeld, Jr. of Northfield will leave Bally Manufacturing Corp. to pursue a new career in commercial real estate development with his own company in Arizona. He is vice-president, secretary and general counsel of Bally. Formerly associated with a Chicago law firm and the Securities Exchange Commission in Washington, D.C., Seidenfeld will remain in a consulting capacity to the corporation for the next year and a half.

Jay Buck of Northfield has joined The Chicago Corporation as senior vice president responsible for capital and risk management. He was previously a member of the senior management team at Northern Trust Company.

The American Academy of Achievement selected Arthur C. Nielson Jr. as an "exemplar of excellence," citing his extraordinary accomplishments in the field of business services, and calling him a well-known pioneer in marketing research.

Nielson, of Winnetka, for many years president, chairman, and CEO of A.C. Nielson Co. of Northbrook, was honored by the academy at a recent dinner in Denver.

The academy was founded in 1961 "to inspire youth with new dreams of achievement in a world of boundless opportunity." The citation described Nielsen as "a tireless, enthusiastic problem-solver who, with his father, not only helped invent their business, but also figured out how to get rich at the same time. He was a youngster who had worked summers at the company, sorting through mounds of data cards and using slide rules to get answers . . . then discovered in the Army during World War II, the forerunner of the electronic computer . . . and rode that phenomenon into a myriad of operations encompassing sales analysis, television ratings, a coupon clearing house, oil and gas well data and magazine subscription — an empire of prosperous services."

Others honored at the dinner included: Walter Annenberg, president of Triangle Publications; Betty Ford; Robert W. Galvin, chairman and CEO of Motorola; Roberto Goizueta, chairman and CEO of Coca Cola; Mortimer Adler, philosopher; David

In Loving Memory Of David J. Shanahan

September 22, 1936 - June 19, 2025

David James Shanahan was born in Lima, Ohio on September 22, 1936- the youngest of George and Muriel Shanahan's five children. He graduated from St. Rose High School and University of Notre Dame, where he was a star of the stage in musical theater. He met his wife Diane Hauenstein at Esther Toy's piano school when they were four years old. They hosted a radio show on etiquette in high school and re-met in San Francisco following his stint in the Navy while she was working as a window dresser at Gump's department store. She had accidentally dyed her hair lavender and was wearing a plaid lavender coat. He said she was the most beautiful thing he'd ever seen.

In the Navy, David was the navigator of a Super Constellation airplane during the Cold War based out of Iceland. They "flew the barrier", guarding the approaches to the US against possible intrusion by Soviet bombers. Some of his best bedtime stories were about air drops of party supplies to their squadron and running with the bulls in Pamplona. He and Diane moved to New York following their wedding, then made their way to the North Shore of Chicago over 50 years ago, residing in Winnetka until her death in 2009 and his on June 19, 2025 at 88 years old. He went peacefully at home, as he desired.

His titles included NBC page, commodities broker and Senior Vice-President at Salomon Smith Barney. He was running his own financial group managing pensions for clients such as the Teamsters Union and the New Orleans Firefighters when he retired well into his 70's. He and Diane had a second home in the French Quarter of New Orleans because they liked the way people sat on their front stoops and laughed, and he received a key to the city. He traveled extensively, including yearly Ireland trips with his Boston pals, and in his later years often with his daughter Carrie and her family. He was dapper, he could talk his way in anywhere and he made friends everywhere he went.

He loved giving Chicago walking tours, Broadway shows with the Donahue gang, fishing trips with the Tebbens, playing piano for sing-alongs, roller coasters, yacht clubs, Heath bars, steak and potatoes, and praying to Saint André for you. He was a very generous lifelong Democrat, a feminist, and he had a knack for finding the shyest person in the room and bringing them out of their shell. He was truly one-of-a-kind with a deep dulcet voice and an easy, unmistakable laugh. He will be forever missed and appreciated.

Papere was predeceased by his wife Diane Shanahan, his brothers Jack and Bill, his sisters Gerry (Tebben) and Peach (O'Donnell), and is survived by his sons Christopher and Douglas, his daughter Carrie Shanahan (Kirk McCall) and his beloved grandson Mies McCall, whom he held when he was five minutes old.

Visitation will be held on Saturday, July 19th, Sacred Heart Church, 9:30 AM, 1077 Tower Road, Winnetka, IL 60093, until time of the Funeral Mass at 10:30 AM.

Interment St Mary's Cemetery in Lake Forest, Illinois. Lunch at Del Rio immediately following.
